

Washington, DC – Today, Congressman Bruce Braley (IA-01), Chair of the Populist Caucus, released the following statement after the Populist Caucus Leadership voted against a motion to adjourn the House on Thursday, March 17:

“We can't go home; we've got work to do. We have a responsibility to pass a real budget and create jobs. After three months in power, we have yet to see a single job-creating bill come to the House floor under the Republican majority – instead, they've offered a spending bill that kills 700,000 jobs. This is no time to go home and put off our work for another week.”
